Tracer AMC follow up the success of 2004's debut album Flux & Form with the release of the 12" e.p. on We Love Records. Available on vinyl only, this is the first material to surface from the band since the release of the acclaimed Flux & Form.

The e.p. features two new tracks recorded during sessions for the forthcoming album, tentatively scheduled for release later in 2005.

'In Rivers' effortlessly flows between time signatures captivating the listener in the layers of melodies that become uncovered as the song progresses. The kind of beauty and attention to detail contained in this song made the The Wire remark that "Tracer AMC is a bridge between sinuous Slint and limpid Television-style guitar rock." April 2004.

'The Russian Threat', led by its 'music box' harmonics, is the band's first foray into vocals on a commercial release. The e.p. is backed with two sublime versions of 'Blue Thread' that showcase the minimal side to the Tracer AMC sound. This song can be found in its original form on the debut album.

The 12" e.p. will be distributed in the UK by Cargo Distribution.
